GERMANY is admitted to the League by unanimous vote of the nations, gets a permanent seat on the League Council, and the thing is done enthusiastically, as it well may be.

One big war is over, the next might come from the East, starting in Russia, with Asia behind it. Western Europe would like the Germans, trained fighters and trained scientists, as a protecting wall on the east.

SPAIN RESIGNS from the League. May the Lord give President Coolidge and the Senate grace and wisdom to stay out of it, and to get out of that League back door, the World Court.

THE AMERICAN CHEMICAL SOCIETY, in Philadelphia, informs you that home-made bread contains 1.9 per cent of alcohol. Bad news for teetotalers. Anti-prohibitionists will tell you that is why bread is so good for the health.

JAMES M. NORRIS, president of the association, says chemistry will end the gold standard. We use heat as our source of energy, or water power.

WALL INDICTED IN CITY GRAFT

WARREN CO. OFFICIALS ACCUSED

Two indictments, naming the Warren Brothers Company and the Central Construction Company, together with all the officers of each corporation, were reported today in Suffolk Superior Court by the Grand Jury investigating alleged graft in city contracts, especially paving contracts.

The charge in each of the two indictments is a conspiracy to maintain high prices in restraint of trade and conspiracy to defraud the city of Boston.

The investigation of the alleged graft, which is said to cover to $1,000,000, continued after the indictments were returned and Charles J. Keene, president of the City Council, was at the courthouse today to testify before the grand jury in connection with its probe.

BIG RUM RAID ON CAPE COD

Surprising fifteen rum-runners near Barnstable today, three members of the State Patrol clutched four men and seized 3,100 gallons of alcohol, 100 cases of whiskey, three trucks and two automobiles.

The raid, made as a result of a "tip" received by the patrol, took the men totally unawares as they were loading the liquor into the machines. The eleven others released.

Those arrested gave their names as George Caspell of Lowell, James O'Brien of Hyannis, Edward Gear of Orono and George Price of Barnstable.

They will be in Barnstable police court, charged with illegally transporting liquor.

The liquor will be landed from a ship, police say.

BROKEN ROMANCE IS BEHIND TRAGEDY

Portland, Me., Sept. 9.—Backed up financially by a prominent Portland woman, Benjamin Turner, who traveled 3,000 miles from Mexico to kill James D. Hallen, soldier of fortune and alleged swindler, pleaded not guilty to the killing today.

Standing staunchly behind Turner, who murdered, police believe, because Hallen swindled him and shattered his romance in Mexico, is Mrs. Constance Kilbourne of No. 110 Oak street.

She has come to his aid in the same way that she aided him 5 years ago when he killed another alleged swindler in Mexico and was acquitted only after she had obtained him financial assistance and a noted criminal lawyer.

She had traveled to Mexico then as a tourist and her sympathies were aroused. But this time, Turner traveled from Mexico City to Falmouth, Maine, on the outskirts of Portland, to do his murder.

NEXT SENATE CONTROL LOST BY COOLIDGE

Washington, Sept. 9.—The Coolidge administration, for all practical purposes, already has lost control of the next Senate.

There have been sufficient casualties among the regulars, or stalwarts, Republicans, to insure the balance of power being held by insurgents, with actual control vested in a coalition of these.

Insurgents with the Democrats whenever they care to associate it.

This will be true, irrespective of whether the Democrats win a single seat North of the Mason-Dixon line in November—and if there is any doubt by insurgents, with actual control vested in a coalition of these.

RUMOR OF 'FAVORITISM' STIRS IRE OF BEAUTIES

Atlantic City, Sept. 9.—A rumor, lacking confirmation, went around the hotels and the Boardwalk today that "Miss Kansas City" is to win the beauty contest and be adjudged the next "Miss America."

Where the rumor came from remained a mystery, but when it became generally circulated the other contestants from all over the country had fire in their eyes.

There was much talk among them of "prejudice and discrimination." They gathered in small groups everywhere and held whispered indignation.

"It isn't that she shouldn't win," they said, "but that she couldn't win before her judging begins."

"Miss Kansas City" is known to her friends and family as Margaret Jordan, aged 20, 5 foot 11 inches, 115 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes.

ROMANCE KILLING OF MAINE MAN BY SLAYER WHO SOUGHT REVENGE FOR WRONGS

A crible and under care of a married nurse, Mrs. Kilbourne, nurse, secured consent for Turner immediately after he had been arrested for slaying Hallen here yesterday, and the lawyer was with him in court today when he was held without bail for the Cumberland County Grand Jury.

When Turner had been released to Cumberland County Jail, had been released, stripped of the clothes clothing and dressed in prison garb instead. Mrs. Kilbourne called on him, bearing gifts of fruit and candy to augment jail fare.

The woman herself is said to have lost between $5,000 and $7,000 at the hands of Hallen, who once was her attorney in a legal matter.

It was expected that the Grand Jury would meet today to take action on the matter believed to have been inspired by the machinations of Hallen in breaking up a romance between Turner and a woman.

In the police theory the slaying of a Maine City girl appears several years before "Turner" was sent to a Mexican jail for slaying James Arquette, the man who is declared to have duped him first.

Out of this began the difficulty with Hallen, the man of many names and diversified attainments.

LONG CAREER OF CRIME.
For five years or more Hallen had lived a comparatively retired life in his Falmouth, Maine, cottage with his wife, somewhat a man of mystery.

But today the entire life of the alleged international swindler was all open book. Police records bore the facts—dating from the distant days when he left Ireland as a boy with his parents and came to America, land of opportunity and easy money—if a man's hand is quick and his blood, cold.

And in Hallen's place a man of mystery stands Turner, the swindler. Nothing is known of the man, at the place of origin, of his affiliations beyond his immediate job in Mexico—and as far as Turner is concerned, nothing will be known. He walked up to the Hallen home.

stood on Benjamin Turner, accountant, gambler, swindler, a colorful man—and he killed the man who had betrayed a trust, and added the only change in what is known of his life history was that two men had crumpled before his gun instead of one.

Mrs. Hallen, third wife of the murdered man, was in a highly nervous state at her home today. The greatest shock to her, friends declared, was the revelation that one husband she believed to be an honest and hard-working lawyer, was a man with a long criminal record sought by the police of many cities.

SECOND NOTICE ON GUN.
Hallen's death marked the end of a five-year search conducted by the undersigned man of fortune and crime and balanced five years of a glowing desire to kill.

The Falmouth, Maine, resident, in 1921, had been retained by Turner as his counsel in the killing of the Maine swindler.

But Hallen, it is declared by Turner, "knew" him of all his money; then "ruled out" on him, leaving Turner to languish two years in the doom of a Maine City jail.

It was Mrs. Kilbourne who was responsible for the eventual release, inspired by sympathy for a fellow-American, she raised a fund of $400 among the American colonists in Mexico, retaining a leading Mexican criminal lawyer and, ultimately, an acquittal was won.

During Turner's long tenure of suffering in prison while awaiting trial, Hallen is alleged to have noticed the mind of the girl Turner lived and to have laid the girl from the man Hallen held her was a confident and desperate criminal.

TAKES BERNARDA TRIP.
Hallen is alleged to have succeeded in breaking the girl's love, and while Turner was awaiting a chance to tell his story to a Mexican Jury she informed him the the engaged man was off.

From that day Turner is said to have planned revenge. He traced Hallen from one end of the United States to the other, his hand posters printed and mailed to every police station in the United States, announcing that Hallen was wanted as a swindler and that a reward of $500 would be paid for the armed.

He hired detectives of Portland to seek out Hallen. No expense was spared by Turner. On a tip that Hallen was hiding in Bermuda, last August he personally went there to seek him out.

ACHIEVES OBJECT.
His trip to Bermuda a failure, he returned to San Francisco and thence back to Mexico, hoping almost against hope, that he would find him down his man. When hopes of finding Hallen seemed darkest, Turner received a tip that Hallen was at his summer home at Falmouth, taking it easy and apparently without a care in the world.

Without any hesitancy he packed his personal belongings, a trunk and two bags, placed a .38-caliber revolver into his hip pocket, and boarded a train.

He came North to Portland to do just one thing and as he said himself immediately after the shooting, "My work is done," sent for the police. "I came here to do one thing and I have done it."

Turner arrived in Portland two weeks ago. He registered at a hotel and communicated with the detective who had successfully sought out Hallen, on a back woods road in Falmouth.

The detective who unwittingly led Hallen to death was Emilie Moren of the Washington Detective Agency of Portland.

Moren said he went to Hallen's home to arrange for a conference in the Congress Square Hotel.

According to Moren, Hallen agreed to see him at the hotel, but failed to keep the scheduled appointment. Moren then furnished Turner with the address of the murderer victim and told him how he could reach the house.

Turner hired an automobile, and drove to Falmouth. He parked the car on the State road and walked to the country lane at the Hallen home.

The man will never be at the slaying his wife was Mrs. Mauda Hallen, 35-year-old widow, who and down the steps to the side of Turner.

Slain Swindler Had Long Police Record

JAMES D. HALLEN'S record as compiled by the Pinkerton Detective Agency for Turner is as follows:

March 27, 1891, arrested New York City, swindle; indictment dismissed.

March 31, 1892, arrested New York City, forgery; indictment dismissed.

October 25, 1893, arrested New York City, forgery, convicted, sentenced to eight years and four months in State Prison.

June 9, 1898, arrested New York City, forgery, acquitted.

March 10, 1913, arrested Washington, D. C., larceny of $11,000 in shipping fake cartridges to Nicaraguan government; discharged.

February 1, 1911, arrested New York City in civil proceedings brought by Brooklyn woman who charged he misappropriated two diamonds, worth $500.

October 13, 1911, arrested New York City, larceny in passing worthless checks; indicted; forfeited bail; rearrested, pleaded guilty and was sent to prison for two years.

May 24, 1917, arrested Cleveland, Ohio, as fugitive from Brunswick, Me., on forgery charge; negotiated after sensational trial in which he defended himself.

November 16, 1917, arrested Portland, Me., alleged conspiracy to perform illegal surgery on Mrs. Fred T. Shaw.

Married twice to wealthy widows, one in New York and the other time in Florida; fled from Troy, N. Y., while under indictment for larceny; accused of robbing New York law firm which employed him, but escaped prosecution because of illness; property attached by various clients who claimed fraud in New York and he fled again.

Well educated; lawyer, editor, lecturer, expert in international law.

A few words followed. Mrs. Hallen said she heard Hallen say let's go into the back yard and we can settle this matter quietly.

To this, according to Mrs. Hallen, Turner replied: "The front lawn is good enough for me. We can settle it right here. The front lawn I tell you is where it is going to be settled and I am not going into the back yard at all."

TURNER PREY 5 YEARS BY MAIL

Portland, Me., Sept. 8.—With the unbroken destruction of a revengeful man, Benjamin Turner, captured from Mexico, sought relentlessly during five years for James D. Hallen, the man who is dead because he is alleged to have victimized his slayer.

Letters written back and forth between Turner and the Pinkerton detective, give an insight into the tenacity of purpose possessed by the Maine City accountant.

In these letters, Mrs. Constance Kilbourne, the Portland woman who was instrumental in clearing him of the charge in the Mexico five years ago and who has gone to his defense in the killing of Hallen, is mentioned frequently.

FOLLOWED LONG TRAIL.
Turner, shortly after the arrest, was represented by attorney L. C. Morry of Lewiston, engaged by Mrs. Kilbourne, and an hour's conference with the client was held at the jail.

The Hallen-Turner feud actually began when the Maine City resident was committed. Hallen pleaded to represent Turner but left him in jail after receiving a retainer of $100.

From then on Turner had been after Hallen, and after acquittal, he arranged several letters with the murdered man and then Hallen dropped from sight and no more was heard from him.

Turner, out of jail and without a penny made up his mind that he must obtain money. He worked night and day, spent money only when he felt that he had sufficient money to write to the Pinkerton Detective Agency at New York.

CARRIED PHOTO OF PREY.
He took the "positive" when they took his case to make sure of their location of Hallen before notifying him because he wanted two time wanted when his prey was located.

He furnished his hunters with a photograph of his man, and himself carried the picture of Hallen with him right into Maine where he took his revenge.

In a letter July 7 to the detective agency, Turner wrote:

"You will note that I stated in my letter of June 10 that it was possible Hallen would sooner or later come to Mexico. I now wish to know and wish you to ascertain what probability there is of his coming here and what he is likely to commit."

"Hallen is, and has been for the past six years and more, the attorney for Mrs. Constance Kilbourne of No. 110 Oak street, Portland, Me., in the case of Constance Kilbourne vs. George W. Bryant. I am not yet familiar with all of the details, but the judgment was secured against Bryant in the United States."

"The plaintiff was unable to collect her claim in the States, however, and in July, 1925, Hallen came with the documents in the case to Chihuahua, Mexico, where Bryant lived, with the object of bringing suit there. Soon after his arrival an associate of Bryant secured the criminal record of Hallen and spread it around the town."

UNDER HALLEN'S SWAY.
"Hallen consulted a Mexican lawyer, showed him the documents in the case, stayed a short time and then left town never to return. I wish to have the facts in the matter with the object of convincing Mrs. Kilbourne, who seems to be still under the Hallen influence. I am sure she would have a strong opinion as to what he has done."

Turner Is Coolest Slayer Held by Maine Police

Portland, Me., Sept. 8.—Benjamin Turner is the coolest slayer ever encountered by authorities here.

He showed no alarm whatever at his situation, facing trial for murder in a building where the unwritten law has little sway. The last defendant to involve that defense in the Pine Tree State ended by pleading guilty to second degree murder.

Yet, Turner's attitude alone is sufficient to typify by his calm remark after the shooting: "I have done it. Go and for the police, I won't run away. I've done it."

BIG PROBLEMS BEFORE LEGION

Salem, Sept. 8.—Knotty problems faced the 400 delegates to the annual convention of the Massachusetts Department, American Legion, when the convention opened today with an address by Department Commander Francis J. Goode at Cambridge.

Rumors were rife that organized opposition would develop to the holding of the national convention at 1227 in Paris. Other questions up for discussion were the discrediting of the Australian ballot in elections and the increasing number of vice-commanders from 3 to 6. A resolution calling for the endorsement of Commander Goode for national commander was to come before the body, either today or at one of the other business sessions of the three-day convention.

An address of welcome by Mayor George Bates of Salem and another by Harry F. Gifford, chairman of the citizens' committee, which is marking the Witch City anniversary celebration, followed the introduction which was by Rev. James D. Casar of St. Joseph's Church, Boston.

After the business session of the convention the delegates plunged into a round of sporting affairs and social activities, including participation in the historical pageant, a clam bake and shore dinner at Salem Wharves, dory races, fishing boats and other events lasting throughout the afternoon and evening.

SUNDAY ASSERTS SIN OPENED HELL'S DOORS

By

W. D. Sunday

(The Rev. "Billy" Sunday)

There is no use to repeat the latest details, day by day, of the Hall-Mills case, and the work of detectives. You see all that in the news articles.

They think they have spread their spider web around another relative of Mrs. Hall, widow of the murdered man. If the accused person be guilty, let us hope that they get him. Nothing is an excuse for murder, although it is hard to believe that Mrs. Hall herself, accused in this case with others by the public authorities, could ever be convicted by a jury of murder in the first degree.

The average man would say, "That unhappy woman suffered thousands deaths by jealousy. She suffered ten thousand times more than her husband ever suffered in that swift moment when a bullet ended his life of sin."

Satan, Sin and Death

The three most beautiful words in every language are: "God, Virtue, Heaven."

The three terrible words, illustrated by this picture are: "Satan, Sin, Death."

"Paradise Lost," is called old-fashioned in these hectic just days. It would be better for the world if there were less reading of trash, more reading of "Paradise Lost."

Many remember the story as Milton tells it, of Satan's trip from the depths of hell, where eternal justice had confined him, determined to disturb the peace that he envied in the Garden of Eden.

In all Milton's work there are no passages more powerful, more inspiring in their awfulness than those which describe Satan's encounter. Continued on Page 11, Column 1.

NEW WITNESSES IN HALL CASE

Somerville, N. J., Sept. 8 (I.N.R.)—Two more "eye-witnesses" to the Hall-Mills murder were occupying the attention of the prosecution today.

A New Brunswick man is said to have admitted he was in the Passaic house the night of the slaying of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanore Mills, his choir singer, and heard shots and screams.

Another man, "witness No. 2," is reported to have bragged to a friend in Brooklyn, N. Y., that he had been at the murder scene and "had seen everything." Authorities plan to confront "witness No. 3" with his friend, "witness No. 2."

Henry Stevens became a storm centre of the case today when he gave evidence to the jury that he saw the body of the murdered man in the face of suspicious cast on him by Special Prosecutor Simpson, and the fact he is watched by State detectives.

The status of Stevens in the murder mystery became a point of issue between his local authorities and the State officials.

He is a member of the Town Council of Lavallois and practically every man on it is his friend, it was said.

of the Valentino estate, was borned here yesterday, when the provisions of the late actor's will were made public by W. J. Gilbert, his confidential attorney. Gilbert has announced that he will file the document for probate tomorrow.

Mrs. Warner, an aunt of Natascha Valentino, is said to be present in the will with her sister, Mrs. Howard Tildred and her niece. Her name is in Salt Lake City. George T. Viana, Valentino's manager, is named as executor without bonds. Attorney Gilbert professed to have had no knowledge of the existence of the will until he received word from Ullman in New York that the document would be turned over to him for filing. The will was dated September 1, 1918, and signed "Rudolph Valentino." It is said to have been drawn hurriedly. A Valentino's friend in New York in which Miss Randolph was named as the sole heir.

Valentino has left an estate worth in excess of $1,000,000, according to the estimate of Ullman. His real properties are appraised at a half million. This estimated does not include his residue in his last two pictures, "The Son of the Sheik" and "The Hawk," which are expected to result in a gross estimate of more than $1,000,000. A life insurance policy for $50,000 is included in the provisions listed by Ullman. "Palace's Lair," Valentino's home in Beverly Hills, is valued at $15,000. A collection of armor and antiques is said to be worth $15,000. Another house here and a new estate in Beverly Hills are valued at $115,000. Three Italian motor cars are put down for $4,000. There are five other cars to be included in the appraisement.

Valentino's private plane is valued at $50,000; his five horses include an Arabian thoroughbred and three Irish jumpers. Four pedigree dogs are valued at $10,000. One is an Irish wolfhound, the gift of Mrs. Gladys Stuart of the East, and said to be worth $5,000. The property that includes Valentino's $1,000 yacht, his fishing boat, a collection of two bird houses, and his personal jewelry. His wardrobe, said to contain 40 suits of clothes, 50 pairs of shoes, 300 ties and 100 pairs of socks, consists of clothes used in his pictures.

M'MILLAN BACK IN MAINE

St. George, Me., Sept. 8.—Lieutenant Commander Donald B. MacMillan and the schooner, Beaufort, and sixteen crew members, who have been in Maine beyond the rim of the Arctic Circle, arrived here today.

The crew were scheduled by fully twenty-four hours and were not expected to arrive here at all and so it was with amazement that the villagers gaped the two explorers, who were riding at anchor when a tug came to the rescue of the ship.

MacMillan made his way to the shore at the hour scheduled for a reception by the town, the Beaufort, and the schooner, Beaufort, and the crew, who were riding at anchor when a tug came to the rescue of the ship.

STEAL $500,000 GEMS ON TRAIN

The train neared Mattson, 70 miles further south. Then William Davidson, San Francisco, freed himself, John Hines, New York, and Horie Minaki, also of San Francisco, and the alarm given.

The bandits entered the drawing room of the three jewelry men 30 minutes out of Champlain, and before the train arrived, bound the men, stole their jewels and escaped the compartment door. They did not make a thorough search of all the baggage and missed $500,000 in uncut diamonds and rubies and other jewels. Davidson said that everything indicated the bandits were of the jewelry trade, which he said were fully insured against theft, and had tried their fortune. The robber tried had taken from Chicago to Champlain.

Word of the robbery was dispatched over a wireless wire to Mattson and the pursuit began. Commuters were warned.

At Mattson, twenty miles south, the sheriff emptied a sawed off shotgun at the car as it sped past. The train continued the line out did not halt the flight.

In Lake, four miles away, however, an overhauled motor balked and the trio, who had threatened the driver when accosted in Paxton, turned the automobile around and sped up the deserted road toward Chicago, about.

SENATE 'LOST' TO COOLIDGE

steable drift to the Democrats in Northern States eight weeks hence, even the paper majority of the Republicans will disappear.

Analysis today of the primaries held thus far make these facts indisputable. The defeat of Senator Landon in Wisconsin, despite his being singled out for conspicuous personal endorsement by President Coolidge, was a particularly severe blow.

It virtually insures two insurgent Senators from Wisconsin to the seventeenth Congress, LaFollette and Blaine. Given in the primary days of the elder LaFollette there was always one regular from Wisconsin. The maximum Republican strength in the next Senate is 33, and to have that they must win every Senate election outside of the solid South.

But in that fifty-five there will be LaFollette and Blaine of Wisconsin, Fraser and Nye of North Carolina, Howell and Burke of Nebraska. Brookhart of Iowa—who vote more often against the White House than with it.

There are also Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, Norbeck and Clegg of South Dakota, and Cavanaugh of Michigan who, while not openly insurgent, as the other group are very independent in their voting, and are imperative to the party whip.

DEMOCRATS SUBJUGATED. The Democrats are jubilant, for they believe they can pick up seven seats in November north of the Mason-Dixon line. They point to such spots as Oregon, where Senator Blaine, defeated for renomination in the Republican primary, had announced his independent candidacy against the Republican who defeated him, Frederick Steiwer. The Democrats, as well as to Republicans leaders, the spells a Republican vote and the probable election of Earl W. Hines, a Democrat, who would President Coolidge a year ago to cut him from the 22, 23 shipping board.

TURNER TRAILED HIS PREY FIVE YEARS BY MAIL

In connection with this case, I suppose it will be necessary for you to learn what he pretends to be doing in the case at present in order to tell me whether it is probable he will return again and when.

"Mrs. Kilbourne writes me that she placed her case before the commission which is adjusting claims against Mexico, but does not explain why. She wishes Hallen to go before the commission in her behalf, but cannot get him to do so.

TEARS OF SWINDLER

"This commission is not in session now, Hallen insists that he not collect his claim in another way; that he can collect a draft which was given in Mexico City three years ago in payment of her claims against Bryant. This draft may be a forgery of Hallen.

Mrs. Kilbourne believes that the money has been deposited in payment of her claim and that it is only a question of getting proof of this deposit. This is pure fiction, of course, but Hallen, I think, has convinced her. Mrs. Kilbourne herself could, of course, give me this information as to Hallen coming but I am unable to approach her on the subject because of her being under his influence.

"While in Mexico Hallen obtained from himself and others considerable sums under false pretenses in connection with other matters quite apart from the case of Mrs. Kilbourne. This accounts for my immediate interest in the man."

SLAYER KNOWN AS 'HERMIT'

Portland, Me., Sept. 8.—"The Hermit" was the nickname stamped on Benjamin T. Turner, slayer of James D. Hallen, when Turner was a prisoner awaiting trial for murder in Mexico City.

For two years and two months he refused to utter a single word to his prison mates. At his trial he sat like a stuffed dummy in the courtroom, but when he was acquitted, he lost his reserve and entered his chief counsel, Jose Maria Lomazano, in the Latin Pavilion.

After that he headed into the silence that puzzled his associates who did not know that, stily and in secret, he was from that moment trading down Hallen.

BULLET ENDS CRIME CAREER

James D. Hallen, victim of Maine murder, as he looks in police photo. His criminal record started in 1891. His picture is in every important rogues gallery in the country.

HALLEN MAN OF MANY LOVES

Portland, Me., Sept. 8.—James D. Hallen, slain swindler, is known to have deserted two wives and is reported to have had affairs with women in a score of cities in the United States, in Mexico City, Honolulu, Haiti and other lands.

According to a report of the Portland Evening Free Press, he married Mary Brook, a forty-year-old widow, in Troy, N. Y., in 1915. He was practicing law there at the time and was twenty-nine years old. Under pressure of enraged clients, who were crying fraud, he fled, leaving her penniless.

DESERTED RICH WIFE

His second wife was the widow of James Brook, a bank president of Osgood, Iowa. He married her in Florida, obtained much of her fortune and deserted her.

His knowledge of law, gained at the Albany Law School, enabled him to participate in governmental affairs in Mexico, Nicaragua, Haiti and Honolulu. He was an ammunition-purchasing agent for the Mexican government, during the Diaz regime.

His skill in the courtroom saved him from many of the dooms of scoundrels in which he found himself as a result of his activities. He sold fake cartridges to the Nicaraguan government, but escaped "booty-free." His greatest legal victory was his trial in Maine for forgery, when he pitied himself against brilliant State's attorneys, befuddled hand-writing expert after expert, and was directed by the jury from the court after a two-week trial.

SEVERED PRISON TERM

One of his failures, to escape the penalty of the law came when Mrs. Florence H. Caldwell obtained a writ with forgery and obtaining $24,000 from her in New York City. He went to Sing Sing for eight years. His victims were often women and it was reported that his approach to them was more often than not through the medium of their relations.

Hallen was born in County Clare, Ireland, and came to this country while a child. Through his native study he became conversant with thirteen languages, including Chinese and Japanese.

INDICT WARREN BROS. CO.

Judge Raymond of the indictments, notified Attorney Daniel E. Hall, who represents the Warren Brothers Company, to have the officers of that concern in court for arraignment today or tomorrow morning. Notice was dispatched to the offices of the Central Construction Company and a bookkeeper there sent back word that he would notify the officers of the corporation that their appearance in court was demanded.

Reporting of the indictments came as a surprise. Attorney Hall had just left a conference with Judge Raymond in the judge's lobby at which he arranged for a hearing later in the day on the indictment, said to be related to the legal transfer of the property of the Warren Brothers Company, which are now before the Grand Jury. Hall refused to make public the nature of his motion. Counsel for the contracting company has previously received authorization from the court to take possession of the books each night at the close of the day's session of the jury, thus preventing examination of them in private by an accountant hired by the district attorney.

The conspiracy indictments were among twenty-one in all which the Grand Jury reported, the others having to do with other cases which have been brought before the jurors apart from the probe of city disbursements.

AUTO VICTIM IS IMPALED

Marlboro, Sept. 8.—Impaled through the abdomen on a fence timber, J. Warren Sherman of Westport received injuries from which he died today in a Marlboro hospital.

Sherman's machine crashed through the road-border fence in the Fort Meadow Park. Casuarina between Marlboro and Hudson, and hung suspended over a 25-foot embankment with a pond below.

Globe Trotting New Englanders on Way Home From Foreign Shores

THE GLOBE-TROTTER
Smart set, which scattered for the Summer to the world's four corners, and since has been selling up and down its seven seas and doing portions of its several continents, is turning homeward once again.

A BRAGGING GLANTZ, the Paris, brought in Mr. and Mrs. Curran W. Cole, Mrs. Henry W. Long, and her son, Harry, junior, James A. Parker, Miss Alice H. Bickler and Miss Flora Owen.

THE LAST NAMED ball from Lowell, and came home from their annual Summer trip to foreign shores. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Cole have covered a wide portion of the globe during the past few months, in two hemispheres.

FROM THEIR California home, in Carpinteria, to Boston for the marriage of Mrs. Cole's son, Henry A. Russell, and Miss Carolyn Twiss, had just returned from the Cote d'Azur. Almost immediately after the wedding they sailed abroad.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK C. FAINE of Boston and Wayland are new arrivals from foreign shores. Their interesting and unusual trip took them to Central Africa in pursuit of big game, by way of the Mediterranean and the Suez Canal.

COMING IN FROM MOSCOW, on the Russian East Express, were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Faine, Mr. and Mrs. Curran W. Cole, Mrs. Henry W. Long, and her son, Harry, junior, James A. Parker, Miss Alice H. Bickler and Miss Flora Owen.

RECENT sailings abroad include Mrs. J. R. Carter and Miss Mary Carter, who have embarked a Summer stay at Stonehenge Manor, Rye Beach, N. H., and embarked on the steamship France for French ports.

Mrs. Pablo Ceballos, of Strawberry Hill in Stockbridge, is on the high seas aboard the steamship DeGrasse on route to Europe. Miss Helen Smith and her husband, from Providence, and Sibyl Crockett Smith, Jr., her brother, are on the DeGrasse.

THEAT POPULAR YOUNG MAN, Nathaniel Saltonstall of the most famous set, is in town again after a Summer of journeying through England and Continental highways and byways.

$5,000 FIRE LOSS ON WASHINGTON STREET
An early morning fire did not do much damage to the third floor of the three-story brick building at No. 39 Washington street.

The fire was discovered by Patrolman Alpha Keweenaw of the Masses street station, who was patrolling at his post at the time. He saw smoke coming out of the windows on the third floor, which is occupied by McCready Brothers, carpenters.

He turned in an alarm from No. 12 and later assisted the firemen. The fire practically destroyed the entire third floor.

A man, as he stood in the street, was struck by a falling rod, which fell from a building, and killed him. The man was identified as John J. Sullivan, 45, of 110 Davenport street, who was standing in the yard of the Boston Oil Company in Everett.

how little she energy, nothing about matter, life, or our own kind. There is plenty left to learn.

IF YOU HAVE tears for high times, this is the time to shed them. Young La Follette and his friends are victorious. Lorimer is beaten, and Governor Blaine will be Senator from Wisconsin.

Governor Blaine is a wide, levelheaded American. The objection to him is that he doesn't "belong" to any big corporation or group. A few more such men won't hurt the Senate. Mr. La Follette straddled on prohibition—a mistake in Wisconsin.

Also, Senator La Follette is the gentleman who herded and led other Senators into voting for the World Court.

And Mr. La Follette is number five among Senators thrown out by the people because of their World Court vote. Gentlemen who don't want to be thrown out of the Senate should not try to force the country into the League of Nations through the back door.

WOMEN are brave, whether they swim the English Channel at sixteen, or like Mrs. Almina Bennett, celebrate a hundredth birthday by flying over a city.

Mrs. Bennett recently beat a fourteen-year-old boy by five stairs, in a race up stairs, and says, "Why should I fear to go up? I am going higher than that soon."

THREE BRITISH officers, two sailors, are killed fighting Chinese troops. The British won't declare war against China because there isn't any central recognized China. Besides, fighting China, like fighting Russia, means burying your head in a leather bed. The deeper you go the more you smother.

PSYCHICISTS wonder why Anabelle Lewis, Illinois, should kill herself because she couldn't have her hair colored in time for school. The young feel disappointment far more keenly than old. That's the axiom.

IN JANUARY a company submitted by the British government will start a passenger air service between Egypt and India. British ships go from Cairo to Bagdad in eight days. British will fly the distance in two days; fare from Cairo to Bagdad $100, including meals and two night lodgings on the journey—flying by daylight only, at first.

BERNSTORFF TO SIT IN LEAGUE

Geneva, Sept. 9 (A.P.)—With Germany now a member of the League of Nations and entitled to sit in the council of the league on terms of equality with the "Big Four"—Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan—her delegates today were on their way to Geneva.

Headed by Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the Reich Foreign Minister, and having among his members Count von Bernstorff, former Ambassador to the United States, the delegation was expected to arrive here this afternoon.

The attitude of Spain toward the league still served today to intrigue everyone in Geneva.

It was recalled that M. Pichon, head of the Spanish delegation, always had contended that Spain's attitude could be announced only when all hope of election to a seat was definitely lost.

The matter of the reorganization of the council still must be discussed by the assembly, and it is considered that Spain would be settling in a logical manner should she without officially despoiling her resignation until the assembly date has terminated.

It is considered likely the European statesmen will endeavor to have Spain and Brazil retain their adherence to the League, to preserve the organization's character of universality.

DUST & SPANISH GENERALS

Madrid, Sept. 9 (N.R.)—Reduction of the number of artillery and cavalry regiments to ten was ordered today in a royal decree, issued as the result of the revolt of artillery officers.

This order is understood to be a compromise measure, General D. Rivera, having desired the dissolution of the artillery corps, artillery within the King was opposed to such drastic step.

The artillery will remain under the control of regional generals for purposes of discipline.

There are many rumors afloat that General D. Rivera means to resign and turn his office over to General Berenguer or Admiral Cervera.

Confident of public support the Government is proceeding with plans for the blockade to be held on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, unless active.

U. S. May Say to Its Ship, 'Don't Go Near the Water'

THE Navy Air Service may find itself in the position of the man who built a beautiful boat in his cellar and then had no way of getting it out without tearing down the house.

The giant airplane carrier Lexington is nearing completion at the Fore River yards, but she will draw twenty-eight feet of water. She cannot be stored at the water, and even if it were there, in great risk that she will not be able to be moved.

The builders have relinquished all responsibility for the launching, leaving the work in the navy. The solution it was said is a special organization, authorized for despatching the carrier, but this may prove very expensive. Continued on page 78.

DRAFT ALL FOR NEXT WAR, SAYS GEN. EDWARDS

26th Leader Lauds Youth of Today: Has No Fear of Pacific Prossandra

Wagons, Falls, N. Y., Sept. 8 (A.P.)—Major General Clarence R. Edwards, United States Army, retired, commander of the 2nd division in the Great War, urged today that the youth of today be drafted for the next war. He said that the youth of today is the best that has ever lived, and that they should be prepared to fight at any time.

General Edwards congratulated the Legion on its effort to make every citizen vote in the coming election, but he said the law "is not a sufficient reason for the war," he declared, "because of our great error that we drafted men's lives and did not draft labor and industry."

"Pass this law and no nation or combination of nations will dare challenge us. If we have the appropriate and develop the wisdom of our youth," he added.

He said that the youth of today is the best that has ever lived, and that they should be prepared to fight at any time.

SHOPPERS FIND ROOM FOR THEIR AUTOS NOW

'All-Day Parkers' Cons.
There's Plenty of Space for Others

More parking space is available for shoppers in the downtown area than at any time in recent years, as a result of the police drive to enforce regulations. James Bloomfield, manager of the Retail Board of Trade, said today.

Bloomfield expressed unqualified approval of the police drive, which he said has worked a hardship on us but the all-day parker, "the person who has no consideration for the rights of others." "Not in many years has there been so much available space for parking," Mr. Bloomfield said.

Automobile parkers who desire to park within the legal period will find plenty of room at convenient points, and in addition, Manager Bloomfield announced, several garages, working in conjunction with the Retail Board of Trade, offer free parking facilities to shoppers between 9 a. m. and noon. A nominal sum is charged for the rest of the day.

Accommodations for about 8,000 motorists are provided in these garages, Mr. Bloomfield estimated. The garages are: North Terminal Garage, Commercial street, on the Boston side of the Charlestown bridge; Broadway Garage, Tremont street, and the Algonquin Garage at Kenmore square. Buses run from the North Terminal Garage to the shopping district.

Intimate Stories of Ford, Bassett, Haynes, Jordan

By B. C. FORBES

HUMAN BEINGS like to read about human beings who have done things. They are curious to know how they did them. They like to read about them. An incident, an anecdote, some times shows a man's character, and the real character of a man is shown in his real life.

EDWARD B. JORDAN is one of the most picturesque figures in the automobile world. Not very many automobile men are collected.

While working as a lad, on a manure in Waukegan, Wisconsin, he made friends with his boss, a man named Mr. J. C. Ford.

ROD D. CHAPIN, chairman of the Hudson Motor Company, tells this happening of the very early days of the motor industry.

"One day one of the Oldsmobiles and I were out motoring when the steering spring broke. After working without result for a while, we were told that a little shop near away was a very clever mechanic and we went to him.

"I did not feel much enthusiasm when I saw the shop. It was not a very nice place, and the man who owned it was not a very nice man.

"We left the shop very much annoyed and were called back to the shop by the man who owned it.

"The man in the shop was a very nice man. He was a very nice man. He was a very nice man.

PROPERLY IS SHOWN MOST CLEARLY

By FRANK H. MELOON, President of the Boston Trust Company.

Regardless of the action of the stock market, property is shown most clearly in the rising up of the leading business concerns.

As pointed out previously in the Boston Evening American, the concern was proper. It is not the concern that is the concern.

PACIFIC MILLS SIGNS BETTER MARKET

Experience of the Pacific Mills, largest factor in the cotton in the United States, has been out of the goodness of the improvement in the cotton market during the past few weeks.

OF bank deposits or bank savings in the United States probably thirty-five billions are being withdrawn at the time. This is the first time in the history of the United States that the banks have been able to do this.

NOBODY can imagine a big bank in the United States that is not a part of the bank. The bank is a part of the bank. The bank is a part of the bank.

JOHNSTON AND LACOSTE IN FIRST MATCH

Philadelphia, Sept. 9 (U.S.A.)—Two Bills of large and small physical dimensions but almost of a parity in skill and determination again will carry the honor of America out on the tennis courts this afternoon for the annual defense of the cherished Davis cup.

The Bills in question were John Johnston and René Lacoste, holder of many titles, including our national indoor championship. This match will take place at 2:30 o'clock. Ninety minutes later Tilden will step out against Jean Borotra, the so-called bounding Basque.

If these matches had been scheduled six months ago the French would have been the hottest kind of favorites, for at that time Lacoste and Borotra had just finished beating Tilden and Vincent Richards within the same week.

In the meantime, however, Tilden has reclaimed a large measure of his old mastery while the French appear to have retrograded beyond even the form they knew in 1925.

Wiser than the challenge given to him by Tilden in 1925, Johnston will be allowed to rest after his defeat of Tilden in both of his matches.

NET STARS WORKING HARD FOR TWO-STATE TOURNAMENT

The Greater Boston preliminaries for the fifth annual New England Tennis and Rhode Island Y. M. C. A. tennis tournament will be played at the Huntington club "Y" in Boston next Saturday.

Four men will be allowed to represent each association, with one doubles and two singles.

The western section of the two State organization will hold their preliminaries at Pittsfield, and the Narragansett section at Newport, R. I.

The finals will be played at the Huntington "Y" at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. September 12. The winners will be awarded to the winners of the best two out of three games in the preliminary and semifinals and to the winners of the best two out of five games in the final.

Molla Demands $500,000 to Join Pro Net Ranks

Philadelphia, Sept. 9 (U.S.A.)—Mrs. Molla Mallory, which turn professional if offered $500,000, she said today. Otherwise the national women's tennis champion is NOT interested in forsaking amateur status to follow the footsteps of Suzanne Lenglen or Mary K. Browne.

"I am too expensive," Mrs. Mallory was quoted as saying by the Philadelphia Bulletin. "If they offered me $500,000 I can't tell what might happen but that isn't likely."

Miss Elizabeth Ryan, runner up to Mrs. Mallory in the national championships, and Mrs. George W. Wightman, former national titleholder, are among those who are participating in the middle state championships here, declined to commit themselves on the professional game.

TRIBE IN FINAL GAME WITH GIANTS

By Nick Flitely.

With the gap in the National League pennant race closed up by the dramatic comeback fight of the Pittsburgh Pirates, the battle for the July and of the National League World Series season continues to be an open race, with the St. Louis Cardinals still controlling the edge by their occupation of first place.

Yet the collapse of the Reds and the comeback of the Pirates mean trouble for Rogers Hornsby's power Cardinals, and thousands of dollars will be placed on the line.

The western section of the two State organization will hold their preliminaries at Pittsfield, and the Narragansett section at Newport, R. I.

The finals will be played at the Huntington "Y" at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. September 12. The winners will be awarded to the winners of the best two out of three games in the preliminary and semifinals and to the winners of the best two out of five games in the final.

700 Writers to Cover Title Go

Philadelphia, Sept. 9 (U.S.A.)—One of the knottiest problems of the Democratic-Turney heavyweight championship fight here September 28 is that of trying to stuff approximately 700 press tickets to fit five hundred accommodations for only about 200.

The requests for tickets from newspapers and news agencies and other press representatives, according to Charles E. McGraw, Jr., president of the Associated Press, are being placed for the installation of nearly 100 telephones, for which only half of the ring-side seating available.

To meet this difficulty, one row of operators will be placed underneath the ring, and other rows will be placed beneath the Grand-Centennial-Sixty-Eight Ring.

New York, Sept. 9 (U.S.A.)—Pittsburgh's pennant chances were considerably brighter today as a result of the double defeat which the world's champions administered in the Reds yesterday. The Pirates are now only half a game behind the Reds, who trail the Cardinals by three games.

The Cardinals will play a double-header with the Cubs today while the Yankees last yesterday but increased their advantage as the Indians have been defeated. If the Yanks win only half of their remaining eighteen games Cleveland must capture seventeen of eighteen to finish in first.

Maloney Denies He Ran Out on Renault

By Jack Conway.

JIM MALONEY, South Boston heavyweight, today denied the report he ran out of his bout with Sharkey, which was planned for this city.

"I am willing to fight Renault, Sharkey, Huffman or any other leading heavyweight," said Maloney. "I did not care to go through with the Renault fight at the time it was scheduled, as I would have had only four days in which to train."

"I knocked out Charley Walnut in my last start and I don't believe I would have any trouble with Renault."

Maloney admitted that differences of opinion with Johnny McGrath, his manager, have also led him to back out of the fight.

Maloney is said to be worth $40,000 and so is independent for the time being at least.

With the opening of the three-day Mt. Pleasant Long Shadow "Either or Both" open, the annual Fall entertainment at the Commonwealth Country Club and the Maine open will be forced to step on it for the remainder of the week or they will not be able to make the rounds.

As far as the boys who are at Hiram Ricker's Poland Springs resort, the Maine open are concerned, they will be out of it in time to start the new season. The boys will get away to a bad start today and will withdraw, in which case the club will have to make the rounds.

Card Owner Plans for World Series

St. Louis, Sept. 9 (U.S.A.)—The Cardinals' holding a considerable time gain lead President Sam Breadon has announced tentative plans for enlarging Sportsman's Park to seat 40,000 persons if the World Series is played here.

The park, which was enlarged last spring, now has a seating capacity of 33,650.

Breadon announced that only two tickets per game would be allotted to other than season box holders.

As in the past box seats for the World Series will be $25.00 each and the reserved seats $35.00, Breadon said.

Under an agreement reached by the Major League officials last season, the first two games of the series will be played in the American League championship city, probably New York, and the next three in the National League pennant city.

Williams to Tackle Providence Eleven on September 25

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Sept. 9.—Providence College will oppose Williams here in the opening football game of the season on September 25. This announcement was made today by Guerdon Messner, graduate manager of athletics at Williams.

The Williams eleven has been negotiating for several weeks for this game, following the cancellation by St. Stephens of this season's opener. Coach Doug Lawson of the Purple stated today that a great deal has been learned from his shoulders with the scheduling of the game, as the players needed a good, hard game to keep in condition, he said.

Graduate Manager Messner has been negotiating with several New England colleges, including Boston College, and in closing with Providence, he stated that he felt Providence just strong enough to give Williams a good game.

New Coach at Lexington

The Lexington High School football eleven will have a new coach in the person of Mr. J. H. Walker, who has been appointed the new director of physical education, succeeding Herbert Walker.

DIVER PLUCKS $3,000 BRACELET OUT OF OCEAN

New Rochelle, N. Y., Sept. 9 (U.S.A.)—Never again will Peter A. Masters, scuba diver, instructor at the Larchmont Shore Club, be envious of the exploits of the pearl divers of the South Seas.

He went into a dive himself yesterday in Long Island Sound and caught a fish of gold and diamonds worth $3,000.

He dived early and brought up a gold bracelet and a silver watch. It was lost several days ago by Mrs. Arthur Knight of Palham Manor.

Budget Will Save Family From Precipice

Robert Fink, N.Y. 248

By MARVIN, 1292

DO YOU know whether your home is founded on solid rock or shifting sands. One man didn't. He knew he made a fair income. That he had his expenses regularly. So far as he was aware, his wife was a sturdy as other women. But he couldn't see anything. He couldn't get enough used to buy anything worth while.

He couldn't quite raise the grade of sending his boy to a camp, or give his girl anything beyond the bare necessities. Life was just the same old round of making money, and paying money without any light or assurance to brighten it.

Then after your wife went on, but it was always the same. Other families fringed up their homes, put on coats of paint and bought new rugs, sent the children on trails and vacations. But he never had enough money on hand for that. "Dad," he knew why, or where it went, but he just never had it.

Just a year ago, his wife decided to take a hand. She was used to being a housewife, but she was no way to get the best of it. She didn't know where they were, but she was no way to get the best of it. She didn't know where they were, but she was no way to get the best of it.

She discovered that they were living on the edge of a precipice, just up to their heads. She was used to being a housewife, but she was no way to get the best of it. She didn't know where they were, but she was no way to get the best of it.

She was used to being a housewife, but she was no way to get the best of it. She didn't know where they were, but she was no way to get the best of it. She was used to being a housewife, but she was no way to get the best of it.

Coffee. What crimes have been committed with the bean! What poisonous liquids have been served under the name. Far more than fifty-seven varieties—good, bad and indifferent—mostly indifferent. And it is the habit of the indifferent coffee which does up more domestic discontent and causes more nervous breakdown than anything else.

Anyone can make good coffee. If she is careful and willing to do the things necessary to success. It is as much a science as it is a good deal. Uniform grinding, boiling water, exact measurements and the proper amount of time.

The first suggestion is that you should buy good coffee; if possible, that which is packed by the roaster rather than loose or bulk coffee. If a manufacturer or coffee dealer puts his own brand in his own factory, it is to his advantage that it is only high quality but uniform.

Next, have your coffee freshly ground as you use it. Always buy it in the bean, and grind it yourself. In your own home. If you have no grinder, use a good one. It is about as fine as coarse granulated sugar. People never seem to realize that coffee taken right out of the same package but ground differently will taste different, or that a uniform grind will generally give a uniform pot of coffee.

Next comes the making: the extracting of the caffeine in its best and most delicious form. As you probably know, coffee contains two elements: first, the caffeine, which gives the flavor, second, the tannin, from which the bitterness comes.

Caffeine is extracted from the ground coffee quickly only when the tannin is extracted. In contact with boiling water, if the water is not at the boiling point, the full amount of caffeine is not extracted. Hence, you don't get the full flavor.

But tannin is very different. It is extracted from the ground coffee more easily when the water is below the boiling point. So you see, unless the water is actually at the boiling point, you get too much tannin and not enough flavor, and make a bitter, unpalatable brew.

The next important thing to finally make good coffee is the amount of water. A sharply sloped, and becoming short tapers are features of the design. The pattern is suitable for men's, ladies', boys' or jerseys. It is cut in Y sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure.

Furnishing the Home

By Mabel Moore

The result has been splendid. Although the budget hasn't brought them a trip abroad or two college educations in three or four months, it has shown them how to make the home more secure and the home of the children's future more real.

It has shown them how to meet the regular expenses and pay their "co-operative" bank bonds. Even though they can't have a car, they are going to guard every penny this winter and get out in the spring. Their budget shows them exactly how to do it.

Budget does bring satisfactory results to those who follow it. It tells them the limitations who have sent for our budget forms, and it will for you. If you are tired of going round and around and never getting anywhere, look at the coupon printed here, and send it in.

Dear lady, you give me a large order when you ask me to show you

Today we enter the channel and visit Mrs. Macro, Queen Elizabeth, in her island.

We can tell at a glance that Gothic days are not very far back yet for the furniture is still straight, stiff and square under its load of carved carvings. But there very carvings reveal the influence of the Renaissance movement.

The period can be distinguished from any other by its ornamental motifs, which combine the curving, coiled leaves of the Renaissance, the Tudor arch and Tudor rose, and the Elizabethan, crude foliage, figures and animals of Gothic decoration. The arms of the owner also appeared on certain pieces. Look for huge billows feet.

The furniture, in Elizabethan days, was massive, solid, straight, hard, uncomfortable, without any upholstering except toward the end of the period where fashion began to shift. Furnishing the Home

By Mabel Moore

The result has been splendid. Although the budget hasn't brought them a trip abroad or two college educations in three or four months, it has shown them how to make the home more secure and the home of the children's future more real.

It has shown them how to meet the regular expenses and pay their "co-operative" bank bonds. Even though they can't have a car, they are going to guard every penny this winter and get out in the spring. Their budget shows them exactly how to do it.

Budget does bring satisfactory results to those who follow it. It tells them the limitations who have sent for our budget forms, and it will for you. If you are tired of going round and around and never getting anywhere, look at the coupon printed here, and send it in.

Dear lady, you give me a large order when you ask me to show you

Today we enter the channel and visit Mrs. Macro, Queen Elizabeth, in her island.

We can tell at a glance that Gothic days are not very far back yet for the furniture is still straight, stiff and square under its load of carved carvings. But there very carvings reveal the influence of the Renaissance movement.

The period can be distinguished from any other by its ornamental motifs, which combine the curving, coiled leaves of the Renaissance, the Tudor arch and Tudor rose, and the Elizabethan, crude foliage, figures and animals of Gothic decoration. The arms of the owner also appeared on certain pieces. Look for huge billows feet.

Let us tell you—

the advantages of heating your home with Gas!

OF course, you want to heat your house with gas—

You know that gas fuel is cleaner, healthier and more convenient than any other—

You know that you'll have no coal to shovel, no ashes to handle, no storage to provide for and no interruption of your supply to contend with—

You know that a gas furnace is the most flexible type of heating machine there is—that it can be regulated to deliver as much or as little heat as you need, and that it can be made to do this automatically.

And now you know that there is a special rate on gas fuel for home heating.

But the one thing you don't know—and the one thing we want to do—is to tell you the advantages of heating your house with this cleaner and more convenient fuel.

Just indicate your interest and one of our engineers will be glad to go into the matter with you fully, carefully and in detail—all without the slightest obligation on your part.

MEDBURY SAYS--

By John P. Medbury

REALIZING that thousands of people like to sing while bathing, a big New York music publisher is having his birds writers compose a series of aquatic numbers.

THESE songs are written especially for bathtub.

THIS publisher has installed a machine department in take care of the bathtub song trade.

HIS catalog contains a lot of high class selections for people who want to bathe during the week.

YOU can buy these soap and water numbers from any plumber.

MOST of the aquatic music is printed on wash rag.

NO bathtub should be without a few copies.

OF course it requires a lot of practice to be able to wash your neck and head the same at the same time.

THESE songs are also printed on dish rag for women who want to wash at the sink.

ONE housewife likes to hum all the popular airs and accompany herself on the waning music.

SHE'd rather use a piano, but a piano won't get the clothes clean.

THESE aquatic numbers are so simple that they can be sung in any bathtub.

THEY don't require any special plumbing.

JACK YELLEN, the well-known lyric writer, has composed twenty-seven hot and cold songs.

THEY'RE written in one key and two faucets.

ONE of the numbers is such a dandy Charleston that when a Chicago man tried it he kicked all the enamel off the tub.

THE tune was so "catchy" he couldn't help dancing. He finally had to put handcuffs on his feet.

IT'S wonderful to think that we can bathe and get a musical education at the same time.

DAILY SHORT STORY

JIMMY'S MUTT

By Irma Hegel

Mrs. McCuen was washing dishes in her neat, green kitchen and she was singing loudly as she worked. Suddenly, she looked about her and, abruptly, her singing ceased for there, in the middle of the floor, was a nondescript puppy of pale blue. She folded her arms.

"James Fitzmaurice McCuen," a wave of pity engendered Mrs. McCuen's heart.

"Well," she said, holding up her hand, "it's not tonight you'll be taking him back. The whole place is a mess. I'll go see Brody myself. Get the beastie down now and come and have your supper."

Obediently, Jimmy put his treasure on the floor and took his accustomed place at the table. Mrs. McCuen had begun to dip out the stew which constituted the evening meal, and now, she was passing Jimmy a second helping.

Jimmy, ordinarily, would have eaten it gladly like the unsophisticated puppy he was, but tonight he only took a spoonful, shook and pushed back his plate.

"Aye, Ma," he poked the puppy at her with a finger.

Mrs. McCuen set her lips in a firm, straight line.

"Well, if you must ask, Jimmy, I'll not be at the table. Go to bed. No, you mutt," shaking an admonishing finger at the dog who had started after her youthful master, "you stay here."

The puppy paused, cocked his head to one side and, thinking his admonition an invitation to play, gambled gleefully toward her. Mrs. McCuen looked round to make sure Jimmy was out of the room, then glanced down at the dog.

"What do you want?" in a tone that was meant to be severe.

In response, the puppy wagged his tail so vigorously that his ears, fat body fairly shook.

Mrs. McCuen dipped a piece of bread in her soup and held it to ward the floor. There was a snail gulp and a moist, pink tongue licked her rough hand gratefully. Jimmy sat in a pile of herself, the road-natured Irish woman went to the pantry, cut two thin slices of stale bread and moida a mouse. The puppy watched her intently.

"The hungry you are, you little mutt," chuckling, "now, now" as she began to lick her good sized shoe "go away with you. I'm no friend of your kind."

Yet, later when the puppy finished his generous repast, she took him in her lap and stroked his smooth silky body tenderly. She even soothed for scratch him behind his soft furry ear.

"Ah, you're the cute one," she mused aloud, "an' I'm not blame the lad for wantin' you. What but I've neither the time nor the patience to bring you up and let better you went back where you came fro'."

At nine o'clock, growing sleepy she made a soft bed for the dog to sleep on the stove, set a saucer of cold water beside the coal scuttles and left him to his own devices. Then, weary because it had been a long hard day, she undressed, climbed into bed, and before she could finish her prayers, was fast asleep.

She was awakened by a shrill bark. An unexpecting it brought her to a sitting position on the bed. For a moment she blinked in wonderment, then she remembered the puppy.

"'Tis just as I thought," she mumbled dully, "a dog is a trouble some creature. Listen to him, will you? I'm glad I told him to take him back."

Slipping into her nightgown, she slipped out to the kitchen. The barking had grown more insistent, more insistently demanding. "He still," she began, opening the door, but the words died on her lips for there, beside the stove, was a mass of flames growing terrifically larger every minute. She was a surge of self-reproach, she remembered the glowing fluid which had been using that afternoon. The next, carelessly thrown into the wood basket, had ignited.

Not daring to breathe longer, she rushed into the pantry, filled a pail with water and dashed it over the flaming basket. But it took four good sized douches before the last smoldering spark was smothered. Not until then did she sink into the kitchen rocker, exhausted by her efforts and the excitement.

If it had been a fire, she recalled not having paid the premium on the fire insurance policy, the ridiculously low balance in the bank. . . . Jimmy, smothering to death, her Jimmy boy . . . she covered her eyes. . . . she thought of what might have happened was too appalling.

As she sat there tortured with her imaginings a warm body nestled against her foot, as icy toes nestled her bare ankle. . . . the mutt! "Bending down, she gathered him to her bosom.

"You saved the house and everything in it, she crooned, nuzzling him. "You think I don't want you? You save the king himself couldn't buy you now."

"What happened, Ma?" Jimmy, pajama-clad and trousers bunched stood in the doorway, then his sleepy eyes widened as he saw the puppy nestling in his mother's arms. "What, Ma, you petting the mutt?" he was on his knees beside her. "You like him better? Want I have to take him back to Brody?"

"Who says anything about—" said Mrs. McCuen, her eyes twinkling. "Look at him, Jimmy, as one of the family already."

WHY EXPERT ADVICE SHOULD BE WELCOMED BY EMPLOYEES

If you want a certain thing done right, go to the man who has reputation for doing an expert in that line.

If it is a large business from the expert work must be done by experts hired by the heads or there must be expert inspectors.

No matter how honest and upright a man may be he cannot do as part work unless he is an expert.

Good intentions and honest purposes will not do expert work because there must be more than honor involved, there must be expert knowledge.

Hence the inspector.

Men should not resent an inspector.

Men who want things right welcome an inspector because if he is an expert in that particular line they can not only learn how to do things properly, but they can have the satisfaction of being connected with work that is expert.

Once More Voters of America Say "NO" on World Court

In the fight to get us into the League Court, no two Senators were more prominent than Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin and Senator Moses of New Hampshire.

Senator Lenroot, in charge of the administration forces on the floor of the Senate, led the fight to get us into the League Court. Senator Moses shared with Senator Borah of Idaho in leading the fight to keep us out of the League Court.

Tuesday, in the Republican primaries, the two leaders were up for judgment by their fellow citizens at home.

Senator Moses was RENOMINATED by 15,000 votes over his opponent, ex-Governor Robert P. Bass of New Hampshire, who ran on a League Court platform.

Senator Lenroot was DEFEATED by 15,000 votes by Governor Blaine of Wisconsin, who ran on an anti-court platform.

This is the record SO FAR:
League Court Senators defeated: Lenroot, McKinley, Pepper, Gurnea and Stanford.

Anti-court Senators renominated: Moses, Watson, Robinson, Brookhart, Nye, Williams and Harrell.

And Senator Shortridge, pro-World Court, renominated through division of his opponents, who combined polled 27,000 votes more than he did.

In these THIRTEEN referendums, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, the people in the Republican party have tried to tell President Coolidge that they do not want us put into this branch of the League of Nations.

Besides the five defeated Senators in the above list, three other League Court Senators have seen the light and are going to vote to get out of the court in December: Gooding of Idaho, Trammell of Florida, and Cameron of Arizona.

Voters are doing their best to make clear that they want a return to Washington's foreign policy. Probably they will get the idea across between now and December.

When Storm Clouds Gather

It Is Wise to Get an Umbrella

Our former Ambassador to Germany, James W. Gerard, who knows Europe and likes candor, recently told a New York audience:

"The only way the United States can defeat the hatred of European nations is to maintain the strongest fleet, army and air force in the world."

We assume he meant not the strongest STANDING army in the world, but a trained reserve of officers and men ready at the call of need to FORM the strongest army in the world.

That was the lesson General Pershing got out of the World War.

He was where he felt the strain of having to wait FIFTEEN MONTHS after our declaration of a state of war before the military strength of the United States could begin to register on the battlefield.

That long wait, made necessary because we did not prepare until AFTER we decided to fight, is now a favorite European reproach. In a new emergency it might be disastrous.

Pershing has tried to get his countrymen to remember the advice of George Washington. He would have us in time of peace do such preparing as would speed our defense in the event of another war.

He worked out a plan for a corps of officers, to be kept in reserve with a measure of training, since the great need in a swift mobilization is enough officers competent to train the men.

This plan still exists, on paper. But lack of appropriated funds and lack of popular foresight have kept it from becoming what he recommended.

Last year fewer than 15,000 reserve officers received only fifteen days' training. That is not preparing for an adequate national defense. It is TRIFLING.

When Congress reconvenes it will be asked to avenge from its spathy.

Our Government, at the Washington limitation of armament conference, scrapped its prospects of naval supremacy and has let our navy lag.

It has recently shown renewed interest in air defense. It should put our land forces in condition to become quickly effective should foreign ill will develop into a tangible menace.

Americans in France

According to official statistics, some 230,000 Americans went to France in 1926 and spent $128 each, a total of $29,360,000.

This is a sample of the deadly influence of Americans on France.

The French, angry at the plight of their franc, blame everybody but themselves. Just now it is the Americans who are deemed at fault.

Outside of Bedlam, it is pretty hard to find a reason for that feeling. Americans have done nothing to France but help her win her war, lend her billions of dollars, none of which has been repaid, and deluge her with tourist money.

That kind of injury would be very welcome in most countries.

Criticism

Criticism is one of the hardest kinds of business in the world. It takes two things: Understanding and sympathy.

Very first thing for a critic to do is to put himself in the shoes of the author, to understand what the author is trying to do. Without this comprehension of "standpoint," the criticism is useless.

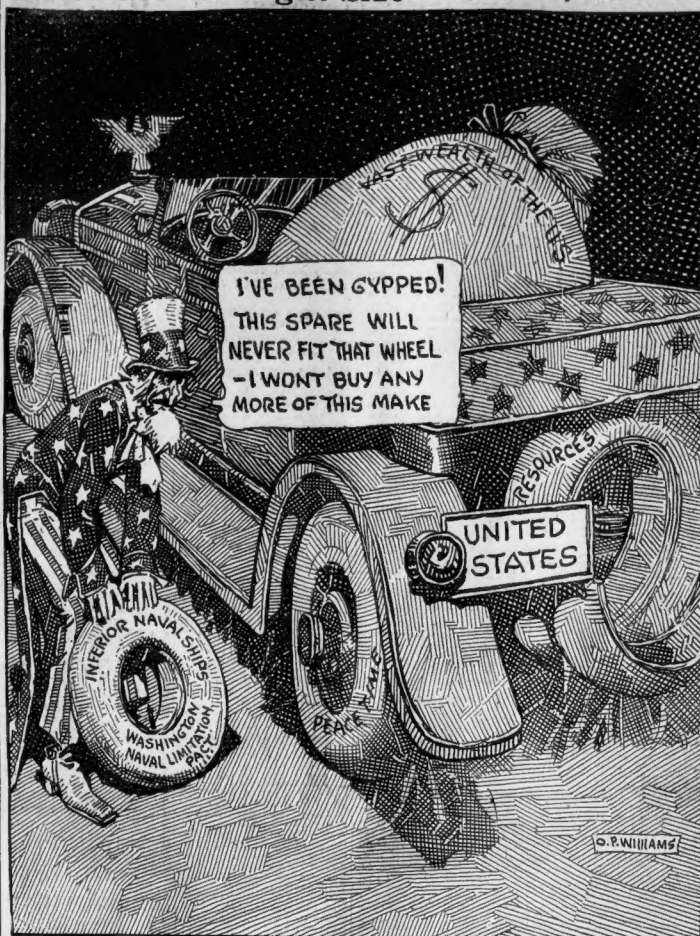

People criticism is merely a matter of finding fault. A critic thinks his work is half done unless he has found a flaw with the production. Fault-finding is a very open to objection.

Any work can be approached in a hostile attitude. It is the only of it that makes the bearings of the work.

Any work can be approached in a hostile attitude. It is the only of it that makes the bearings of the work.

Better Get the Right Size

By O. P. Williams

OUR national uncle has always been careless with his defenses—and has paid for his carelessness with your money and with the lives of your sons.

When he scrapped his new battleships he left other naval powers free to build an unlimited number of cruisers, submarines and other war craft. They are building them as fast as they can.

And now he is letting his reserve of trained army officers run down. That kind of negligence is the fastest economy.

LURE OF THE MAP STIRS US ALL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A LITTLE boy in Poland once put his finger on a spot in unexplored Africa and said:

"I want to go there."

As the captain of a ship years later he did go there and told the story in "The Heart of Darkness" under the name Joseph Conrad.

There is a bewitching allurements about a strange map. As children we are attracted to it and when we are grown the map still holds much of its old lure.

The many colored, strangely named countries, the veiled, the mysterious river, the crinkled shadings that rise to towering mountains in the mind, ancient names that have come down the centuries trailing rainbow-hued legends, are all seen on the face of a map.

In the lure of the map is the spell of the unknown, the charm of the impalpable, the seduction of the far away.

The gypsy blood of nomad forebears is stirred. Inherited in our natures is the spark of wanderlust.

Over the broken shore lines and empty blanks our imagination fills in the foam-tipped waves riding in on a deep blue sea, or wide pampas of endless green.

From tales by the fireside of the old Norsemen returned from strange lands, down through the colorful record of Ulysses' wanderings and the weird fantasies of Marco Polo and of Sir John Mandeville to the present newspaper accounts of Amundsen's and MacMillan's faring into the far north, of the Rice expedition into the jungle of South America, of the Beebe expedition in search of the mysterious Sargasso Sea, travelers to unfamiliar shores have interested everyone.

Burton Holmes has capitalized this innate interest in the far away with the travelogues of other lands. The movies are bringing the sights of other countries before our eyes. But still in the vague outlines and names of the map our imagination is stirred in the same old way.

The lure of the map remains unchanged.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HAVE you a Bellowing Billy in your home?

Does he yell for his shaving cream, howl for his collar button and bust the roof off the garage when he can't find his pet monkey wrench?

Yes? Then you'll sympathize with Alice in her troubles with her housewife's beloved.

Dear Elsie: If you can advise me on a course to pursue when one has a bully for a husband? I've been married four years, and prior to our marriage my husband had his finger, until he reached thirty-five, no cares or responsibilities whatever.

Our union was blessed with two darling babies, and naturally my work in a busy one taking care of them and the house. Every bit of work I did by myself, I am not of the sympathy here, because there are hundreds of young women done likewise.

BUT he goes out into the yard and it needs help on his car or in the garden, he will about my name repeatedly at the top of his voice, never giving me a chance to even get there. When I hear that thunderous call I just drop babies or whatever I am doing, to run to his assistance and thereby stop the yelling so that all the neighbors won't hear him.

Now he gets the notion or something displeases him, he will proceed to yell me out of the street or even any other public place, while the police stare. You can imagine how I feel.

More than once neighbors have come to their windows and asked him if anything was wrong, knowing full well it was his temper, but even this has failed to stop him.

He says that I sit down all day and do nothing while he works. He says he has to go to work every day, and he says he has to go to work every day, and he says he has to go to work every day.

He says that I sit down all day and do nothing while he works. He says he has to go to work every day, and he says he has to go to work every day, and he says he has to go to work every day.

You Remember Gulliver's Travels?

This Picture Reminds You of That Old Story

THIS IS THE NORGE. GREAT DIRIGIBLE THAT TOOK AMUNDSEN AND HIS PARTY OVER THE NORTH POLE.

You have seen the picture of Gulliver, a prisoner among the Lilliputians, tiny human creatures, no bigger than his thumb, that tied him down with innumerable strings.

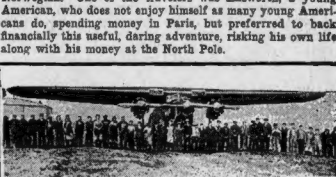

This picture of the great Italian dirigible reminds you of Gulliver. Here you have a powerful creature of the air tied and held down by tiny creatures gladly lending their aid in a landing.

This picture shows in a primitive way how man will travel around this earth in years to come.

Lighter than air, driven by powerful engines, this ship was able in a few hours to penetrate and cross the dreadful Arctic wastes, sailing over the North Pole, above the frozen waste where so many brave explorers have lost their lives.

This picture interests many nationalities. The great boat was built in Italy, planned and designed by an Italian, Nobile, and in its trip over the North Pole it was steered by that same Nobile, brave and able Italian pilot.

The man who planned the expedition was Amundsen, the Norwegian. One of the travelers was Ellsworth, a young American, who does not enjoy himself as many young Americans do, spending money in Paris, but preferred to back financially this useful, daring adventure, risking his own life along with his money at the North Pole.

THIS IS THE GREAT FOKKER PLANE WITH WHICH COMMANDER BYRD, AN AMERICAN, FLEW OVER THE NORTH POLE, AHEAD OF AMUNDSEN.

Compare the dirigible in which the brave Amundsen passed over the North Pole, after Peary, one American, had gone there ON FOOT, with this big plane in which another American, Commander Byrd, sailed over the North Pole, several days ahead of Amundsen.

Which of these TWO SHIPS do you think will survive the tests of time? Both of them, perhaps, will live in form very much changed. They remind you of different animals, THE DIRIGIBLE of a fat goose, THE AEROPLANE, powerful and terrible, like an eagle or a condor.
